A British farce, first performed in 1942, this play incorporates all the traditional elements of the genre. It combines marital misunderstandings, female impersonation, an eccentric scoutmaster, pretty girls and a faux criminal investigation. It is as funny today as it was for its original audiences.

Proudly Sponsored by The Full Moon Hotel. Come and enjoy an evening of live theatre at the historic Sandgate Town Hall. Sandgate Theatre is celebrating its 50th birthday by re-enacting the first play it performed in 1958.
